

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

M-Annick Lamy-Giner is a lecturer in Geography at the Université de La Réunion whose interests are mainly centred on road and air transport, ports and transport corridors, particularly in Southern Africa and South-West Indian Ocean Islands. <malamy@univ-reunion.fr>

Julia Sallabank is a lecturer in Language Support and Revitalisation in the Endangered Languages Academic Programme at the School of Oriental and African Studies, London. She has been conducting sociolinguistic research and language documentation in Guernsey, Channel Islands since 2000. <js72@soas.ac.uk>

Bruno Saura is a Professor in Polynesian Civilisation at the Université de La Polynésie Française in Tahiti. He is a doctor of Political Science and a supervisor in Anthropological Research at the Université d'Aix-Marseille III. He has published several works on traditional and contemporary Tahitian society. <bruno.saura@upf.pf>

François Taglioni is a Professor at the Université de La Réunion. His research interests, relating to island studies, mainly focus on insularity; health and the environment; the emergence factors for infectious diseases; regional cooperation; and tourism. <tagli@diplomacy.edu>

Marie Redon is an Associate Professor with L'Université Paris 13. She obtained her PhD in Geography in 2007 at the L'Université Paris 1-Sorbonne and is currently a member of PRODIG (Pole de Recherche pour l'Organisation et la Diffusion de l'Information Géographique) and CRESC (Centre de Recherche Espaces, Sociétés, Culture). <mredon@yahoo.com>