

Contents

|                                                                                                                                                                                              |         |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------|
| Introduction- Monika Barget, Katrin Dautel, Laura Dierksmeier, Philip Hayward,Jan Petzold and Kathrin Schoedel                                                                       | 1-5     |
| 1. Reimagining the Juan Fernández islands: Cruise tourism and thecommodification of nature- Elizabeth Chant &amp; Natalia Gandara                                             | 6-23    |
| 2. Empty homes and dead goat bones on Xiji Yu- James X. Morris                                                                                                                    | 24-69   |
| 3. The affective landscapes of Chinese island abandonment- Gang Hong                                                                                                              | 70-90   |
| 4. Jersey parishes, iconography and island senses of place- Peter Hargreaves                                                                                                      | 91-122  |
| 5. Fairylands: Bermuda's 'idyllic' (and exclusive) enclave- Peter Goggin                                                                                                          | 123-139 |
| 6. Ruminating on seaweed: Exploring the film-philosophy of Pierre Creton withthe seaweed eating sheep of North Ronaldsay- Jon K. Shaw                                         | 140-172 |
| 7. Our island fortress" and the sea: The threat of a cross-Channel Naziinvasion and the maritime traditions that helped save Britain, 1940-1941- Sean Dettman                 | 173-191 |
| 8. Indigenous island autonomy and special economic zone status:Developmental tensions of Jeju Free International City, South Korea- Adam Grydehøj, Seon-Pil Kim &amp; Ping Su | 192-211 |
| 9. "Quite an innocuous thing": the Select Committee on the Greater Use ofManx Gaelic and Language Revitalisation in the Isle of Man- Gary N. Wilson &amp; Catriona Mackie     | 212-228 |
| 10. Food at the edge of the world: Gastronomy marketing in Tórshavn(Faroe Islands)- Francesc Fusté-Forné &amp; Jonatan Leer                                                   | 229-247 |
| 11. Mermaids and related figures in Jersey and Channel islands' folklore- Giles Bois                                                                                              | 248-259 |
| 12. An androgynous alliance: Evelyn De Morgan and 'The Little Mermaid'- Cecilia Rose                                                                                              | 260-279 |
| 13. Melusine and the Starbucks' siren- Sarah Allison                                                                                                                              | 280-288 |

|                                                                                                                                                                |         |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------|
| 14. Fear of a Black Mermaid- Noveliss                                                                                                               | 289-290 |
| 15. Feature Review: Beatriz Llenín Figueroa's Affect, archive, archipelago: Puerto Rico's sovereign Caribbean lives (2022)- Guillermo R. Gil | 290-292 |